

Grant Writing

Tuesdays/Thursdays 3:30-4:45

English 4990/6990

Spring 2018

This service-learning course invites you to learn and practice the principles of grant writing, through sustained engagement with community partners who are seeking funding for new local initiatives. Grant writing is common across arenas ranging from education, to science, to nonprofits, to government, and is constantly evolving. For this reason, the course will focus on how to flexibly and creatively adapt to different situations, genres, and audiences as grant writers and analysts. Over the course of the semester, you will move from analyzing how grants work, to writing a grant proposal, to critically reflecting on your experiences and goals in this field. No prior experience with professional writing is necessary: any students interested in writing, research, and advocacy are welcome.

Textbook: The Only Grant-
Writing Book You'll Ever
Need, 4th Edition

Questions: Contact Professor
Katherine Flowers at ksf143@msstate.edu