

Grant Writing

Tuesdays/Thursdays 9:30-10:45
English 4990/6990
Fall 2019

This community-engaged course focuses on how to write grants. Along the way, we will engage with campus and community partners who are seeking funding for new local initiatives. Grant writing is common across arenas ranging from education, to science, to not-for-profit organizations, to government, and is constantly evolving. For this reason, the course will focus on how to flexibly and creatively adapt to different situations, genres, and audiences as grant writers. Over the course of the semester, you will move from analyzing how grants work, to writing a grant proposal, to critically reflecting on your experiences and goals in this field. No prior experience with professional writing is necessary: any students interested in writing, research, and advocacy are welcome.

Textbook: The Only Grant-Writing Book You'll Ever Need, 4th Edition

Questions: Contact
Dr. Flowers at
ksf143@msstate.edu